RAHALL SAYS NO TO DRUGS!

WASHINGTON, DC - U.S. Rep. Nick Rahall has announced that he is taking action to combat America's drug problem by supporting legislation that would designate a week in which honor youth who are fighting drugs.

Rahall supports the Joint Resolution, which in addition to praising those who say "no", directs the President to designate May 17-23 as "Just Say No To Drugs Week."

"Drug abuse is a serious problem we face in America," Rahall commented. "It is tearing away at the framework of the American system by fracturing families, destroying our children and killing people who have productive lives ahead of them. Many throughout West Virginia and the nation have decided that they are not going to let drugs be their Waterloo. They are going to live their lives constructively and say 'no.'"

Rahall said the current administration is putting up a false front when it comes to combating the drug problem and something needs to be done.

"The President went on television last summer talking of his drug program. It was there he coined the phrase, 'just say no,'" Rahall said. "However, when it came time to set aside money in his budget for programs to combat drug abuse, he 'just said no' and the money was gone. It is time that something is done to protect America before it is too late."
