$22,231 IN FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE AWARDED TO MARSHALL MEDICAL STUDENTS

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- U.S. Rep. Nick Rahall (D-WV) announced today that medical students at Marshall University in Huntington, West Virginia, are receiving $22,231 for student loans under the Health Professions Student Loan program for the academic year 1994-1995.

The distribution of financial assistance for health profession students is a collaborative effort of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the Public Health Service, the Health Resources and Services Administration, and the Bureau of Health Professions.

"The release of funding for student loans will enable students of medicine at Marshall University and other schools in West Virginia to pursue their educations and not be burdened by major financial obstacles," Rahall stated. "Any loan or assistance funding made available to students in West Virginia will encourage educational opportunities while opening doors to future success," concluded Rahall.
