RAHALL, BUSH TO MEET TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- President Bush, U.S. Rep. Nick Rahall (D-WV), and other Congressional leaders will meet tomorrow morning at 8:30 a.m. at the White House to discuss resolutions on use of force in the Gulf Region.

"President Bush has asked us to join him in a question and answer type atmosphere so that we will be able to voice our thoughts and concerns about what course we should take, as a nation, in the Gulf Region," said Rahall.

Congress met today to debate what role the United States should play in the Gulf Crisis. Debate is expected to continue tomorrow and Saturday before a final vote will be taken.
