Truman Group Due Here for Ship Inquiry

The Senate war activities investigating committee headed by Senator Harry S. Truman (D.) Mo., is due here today. It is on the Pacific Coast to investigate shipping, having concerned itself within the last few days at Seattle with the troubles of Liberty ships.

It will be Senator Truman's first visit here for a long time, though members of his committee, notably Senator Mon Wallgren (D.) Wash., frequently have been in Southern California on various investigations.

Senator Truman was to have been here for the Jackson Day dinner, but couldn't make it. However, he will speak Monday at a luncheon in the Biltmore Bowl under auspices of the Aircraft Parts Manufacturers' Association.

The party, which will stop at the Ambassador, is composed of Senators Truman, Wallgren, Harley M. Kilgore (D.) W. Va., Homer Ferguson (R.) Mich., and Hugh Fulton, counsel.
